WIESE FARMS

NWOC SS LEGACY shown here at 4 years of age & weighing 1800 lbs. We have been using Legacy successfully for 3 years. He has given us moderate size calves with good muscle expression. We will have sons & daughters from him for sale this summer.

Announcing our junior herd sire, Cat Creek Sizemore, pictured here at 14 months. He will be assigned to breed our heifer replacements this January. We purchased "Sizemore" as Lot 62 at the National Sale in September at Murray State College where he was bred and consigned by Carson Farms of Statesville, NC.

Wiese Farms purchased their first Red Polls in 1927 and they have been a part of our lives and our farming and ranching success ever since. Red Polls have many fine qualities to contribute to the beef business.

Our hope for the future of the Association is that more people come to recognize the mothering ability, the docility, the ability to do well under adverse conditions, and the quality of the finished product for the consumer that is inherent in our Red Poll breed.

Wiese Farms encourages all breeders to register their females and bulls kept for breeding, and transfer all they sell. We support Complete Herd Reporting to advance the quality of our herd and the breed, and encourage everyone to send in all carcass information that you are able to obtain.

A nice group of yearling bulls for you to consider out of NWOC SS Legacy with frame sizes from 5.0 to 7.0 and yearling weights from just under 900 pounds to over 1100 pounds on pasture with 10 pounds of grain daily. Have one young bull out of Parkstyle Gibraltar also that would work for an operation looking for high performance bulls to use on mature cows. We would be pleased to send you performance information and pictures on the individual bulls. The bulls will be ready for light to moderate servicing this spring!

From the President

I would like to open by wishing you all a happy and prosperous new year. Next, I would like to thank our two board members who retired from the ARPA board at our national meeting;

Dr Dan Schmiesing for the years he has dedicated to the Red Poll breed as a breeder, board member, and president, and Brian Fairchild for his service as well. Both of these gentlemen have donated innumerable hours of time and driven thousands of miles to fulfill their obligations.

Our two new board members are David McCall and Faron Daniels. I look forward to working with these two gentlemen and the remaining members in 2019.

I was pleased with the turnout in Oklahoma and the enthusiasm of new buyers for Red Polls. We had a healthy mix of new buyers, returning enthusiasts, and active breeders. Improving our presence and awareness in states with high brood cow numbers can only help our future sales as monoculture agricultural practices continue to spread. The sale was staffed and executed with Red Poll breeders and they all did an exemplary job, the only thing missing was getting to see more of you there.

2019 will most assuredly be filled with new challenges, opportunities, and rewards. It is my hope it is a year you and your families will remember fondly.

Mike Reed, President

A Message from the Secretary

Greetings to all of you and I hope everyone had a wonderful Holiday Season. As serving as your Executive Secretary the past 10 months it has been full of its challenges, but I have been blessed to serve with a Great Board. I have also been able to talk and meet with many great Red Poll Breeders who have made this job easier. As I have just went through my 1st National Red Poll Meeting & Sale, I want to Thank everyone who made me feel welcome and helped.

In this issue contains information about the 2018 National Sale and Meeting, the 2018 National Red Poll Show, and Upcoming Events. Also remember that if you or your Association is having an event, please let the office know so we can help promote via email and constant contact.

Also, I want to inform you of a few things from the office: As we are heading into Spring and you are Registering those calves, Transfers, and Completing your Herd Inventory. Please keep in mind when you are mailing them into the office to allow a 3-week turnaround. Your work is only here in the office less than a week but the postal mail has been taking longer than expected to and from its destination. So, going forward when your work is processed you will receive a PDF of your work via email so you will know that it has been processed. My first and foremost goal for the breeders of the American Red Poll Association is customer service. Remember our office hours are M – F 10 am to 3 pm EST and I will return your call within 24 hours of your message. I also will respond to any email sent to me at americanredpolls@gmail.com within 24 hours. I may have to do some research for your questions, but I will let you know I received it.

Thank You Again for your patience and kindness.

What's the Most Economical Month for Calving?

By Justin Sexton -Sexton is director, Supply Development for Certified Beef

Cows calve in all kinds of conditions and in all kinds of weather. As has been pointed out more times than can be counted, there's not much you can do about the weather. But there are a number of things you can do about the options you and your cows have for where the calves are born.

The researchers evaluated March, June or August calving dates on the range, or two July calving systems in year-round confinement or in semi-confinement with grazed corn stalks from fall to April weaning. Even if none of these models fit your operation, the production and cost principles they illustrate can help develop a system that does match your resources.

Confinement for beef cows ranges from enclosed buildings to a more extensive dry-lot model, with greatly varying costs based on capital investments. Confinement in an open dry lot of costs less, but if you have to deal with inclement weather, heat, cold, rain or snow, the added shelter may be worth the added investment.

Either of the confinement options could also make sense where expansion on range or pasture is limited by land availability. Confinement models can increase ranch stocking rates by using forage resources more efficiently, with options for strategic supplementation and preventing overgrazing.

The top concern for any herd management system may be how flexible or rigid it is in setting the calving season. That window determines the year-round nutrient demand curve for the entire herd, along with seasonal price risks for ranch inputs and cattle markets.

In confinement housing, the main benefit is a ranch "environment" that becomes significantly more manageable. Cow herd nutrition options are much more flexible than the pasture under their feet. In the semi-confinement model the Nebraska team evaluated, grazed corn stalks reduced winter feed costs while capitalizing on seasonally low harvested feed costs during the confined spring and summer. There was nearly $100 net difference per calf between the two systems, total confinement with a $46.57 loss compared to a $51.92 net gain for calves in the semi-confined model. Comparing returns to different calving dates among all five systems, March netted the lowest cost per calf and June, the highest. But unit cost of production was the key lesson in this data. Despite the greatest total cost, June calving provided the lowest unit cost of production and greatest net profit per calf, thanks to greater weaning and carcass weights. Simply driving down costs did not directly equate to increased profit. What did equate to more profit deserves a closer look. Higher weaning weights came from weaning later than the traditional seven months—and the data show cow performance was not compromised by longer lactation. In that light, those with fall-calving herds on cool-season pastures might consider delayed weaning into June to help manage spring growth and add weight to calves. You might worry that will hurt reproductive performance, but cows are already bred or not when you decide to keep calves on the cow longer.

Body condition score (BCS) of a cow at calving is a far greater indicator of reproductive success than BCS at weaning. That's a reminder to those with March-calving herds: now is the time to ensure cows have adequate nutrition to rebreed next year.

We might think that a pasture system calving in concert with natural forage production (June in Nebraska) is always more profitable than a semi-confined model with a comparable calving date. Not in this study. Semi-confinement netted $7.15 more per calf, over and above the $44.77 net return to June calving on range. Is that extra 13.7% profit worth a wholesale change and potential loss of pasture leases? Maybe, if you want to expand without adding land.

The Nebraska study didn't consider seasonal price variation of inputs or cattle, though we know those trends can be strong and variable by region and impact on each ranch. While the five-system evaluation did capture the value of reduced costs in using corn stalk grazing, it muted seasonal marketing advantages by using fixed historical market prices for calves. Feed and forage input costs were also fixed—costs that are often stacked against confinement models. But all of us sometimes forget to consider variation in forage production for grazing models. Look out the window and we realize nature can give or take a lot from average, but we tolerate that risk as less troublesome than trying to manage feed prices.

Calving dates and management systems are hard to change on a dime, but it pays to keep alternatives in mind as a hedge against a possible future that calls for change.
